Special Issue on
Gynecologic Oncology Research and Practice
Call for Papers

Gynecologic Oncology Research and Practice is a specialized field that focuses on the prevention, diagnosis, treatment, and overall management of cancers affecting the female reproductive system. This academic topic encompasses a wide range of research areas, including epidemiology, molecular biology, clinical trials, and survivorship care. Gynecologic oncologists, researchers, and practitioners work collaboratively to develop innovative treatment strategies, improve patient outcomes, and enhance the quality of life for women with gynecologic malignancies. Through advancements in surgical techniques, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, and immunotherapy, Gynecologic Oncology Research and Practice strives to provide patients with the best possible care and survival rates.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Gynecologic Oncology Research and Practice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Clinical trials and therapeutics
- Epidemiology and prevention
- Early detection and accurate diagnosis
- Diagnostic imaging and pathology
