Special Issue on Values, Morals, and Ethics Research

Call for Papers

Values are the rules we make decisions about right and wrong, should and shouldn't, good and bad based on. Morals are the principles that guide individual conduct within society. Compared with values, morals have a broader acceptance and a greater social element. Ethics tend to be codified into a formal system or set of rules which are explicitly adopted by society.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Values, Morals, and Ethics Research. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Justice
- Corruption
- Behavioral ethics
- Conflict of interest
- Social responsibility
- Prosocial behavior
- Moral cognition
- Virtue ethics

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Values, Morals, and Ethics Research” should be selected during your submission.
