

Special Issue on Developmental Psychology

Call for Papers

Developmental Psychology is a branch of psychology that attempts to explain the development of humans over time, both in the micro sense, as they develop from babies to mature adults, and in the macro sense, as the culture itself evolves through the years and decades.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original researches and review articles on exploring developmental psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Language acquisition
- Learning disabilities
- Emotional development
- Self-awareness and self-concept
- Cognitive development
- Social and cultural influences
- Personality development
- Moral reasoning

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal at Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Developmental Psychology” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue timetable:

Submission Deadline	May 18th, 2018
Publication Date	July 2018

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries
Please contact Editorial Assistant at psych@scirp.org