Special Issue on Stress, Behavior and Mental Health

Call for Papers

Stress is a physical, mental, or emotional factor that causes bodily or mental tension. Stresses can be external (from the environment, psychological, or social situations) or internal (illness, or from a medical procedure). Management of stress is one of the keys to a happy and successful life in modern society.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Stress, Behavior and Mental Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Posttraumatic stress disorder
- Stress-induced behavior and diseases
- Chronic stress
- Interventions and therapy
- Stress, motivation and work performance
- Occupational stress and management
- Distress tolerance, relaxation and coping strategy
- Stress, mood and cognition
- Personality disorder
- Stress, well-being, Lifestyle and satisfaction
- Childhood trauma and stress
- Substance Abuse and Stress
- Emotional intelligence and emotional expression
- Gender factors and differences
