Special Issue on Emotion and Behavior

Call for Papers

Emotion is a mental state that arises spontaneously rather than through conscious effort and is often accompanied by physiological changes. Such mental states or the qualities that are associated with them, especially in contrast to reason: a decision based on emotion rather than logic. It’s an affective state of consciousness in which joy, sorrow, fear, etc., is experienced, as distinguished from cognitive and volitional states of consciousness.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Emotion and Behavior. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Emotional and behavioral disorders
- Emotional processes
- Process of intuition
- Performance and achievements
- Perception and emotional behaviors
- Counselling and interventions
- Satisfaction and motivated behavior
- Emotional deficits and psychotherapy
- Emotional awareness
- Emotional regulation
- Social skills
- Functional perspectives

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Emotion and Behavior” should be chosen during your submission.
