Special Issue on Family Psychology

Call for Papers

Family psychology is a broad specialty in professional psychology based upon the principles of systems theory with a strong focus on the interpersonal system of the family.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Family Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Psychology of family relationships
- Family therapy and counseling
- The role of family in child development
- Parenting styles and child behavior
- Families and schools
- Couple and family psychology
- Domestic violence
- Child abuse
- Family environment, emotions and behaviors
- Intimate relationships
- Family-centered positive psychology
- Cultural and family psychology

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Family Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.
