

Special Issue on Emotion and Behavior

Call for Papers

Emotion is a mental state that arises spontaneously rather than through conscious effort and is often accompanied by physiological changes. Such mental states or the qualities that are associated with them, especially in contrast to reason: a decision based on emotion rather than logic. It's an affective state of consciousness in which joy, sorrow, fear, etc., is experienced, as distinguished from cognitive and volitional states of consciousness.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Emotion and Behavior. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Emotion, cognition, and behavior
- Personality, emotion and behavior
- Emotional development
- Emotion on learning and memory
- Emotion and human potential
- Models of emotion
- Emotional processing
- Social and emotional patterns
- Emotional and behavioral disorders
- Behavior research and therapy
- Positive interventions
- Emotion regulation
- Emotion perception
- Emotional attention
- Emotion and decision making
- Effects of emotional experience
- Emotion and motivated behavior
- Emotions and consumer behavior

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – *Emotion and Behavior” should be chosen during your submission.
