Special Issue on Social Psychology

Call for Papers

Social psychology is the scientific study of how the thoughts, feelings, and behaviors of individuals are influenced by the actual, imagined, and implied presence of others, explaining human behavior as being a result of the relationship between mental state and social situation, studying the conditions under which thoughts, feelings, and behaviors occur and how these variables influence social interactions.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Social Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Social cognition and behavior
- Human behavior and social environment
- Attitudes and behavior
- Motivation and emotion
- Affective processes
- Personality and social behavior
- Intergroup relations
- Social identity
- Self-regulation
- Prosocial behavior
- Love and intimacy
- Social norms
- Cultural psychology
- Diversity & inclusion
- Judgment & decision-making
- Prejudice and stereotyping
- Social support
- Conflict resolution
- Morality

Authors should read over the journal’s For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal’s Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Social Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.
