

Special Issue on Family Psychology

Call for Papers

Family psychology is a broad specialty in professional psychology based upon the principles of systems theory with a strong focus on the interpersonal system of the family.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Family Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Methods and measurement
- Parenting and family relationships
- Family therapy
- Psychological intervention
- Marriage and family counseling
- Child & family psychology
- Family environment on personality
- Families in schools
- Child abuse
- Emotional competence, attachment, and parenting styles
- Intimate relationships
- Cultural and family psychology
- Family functioning and psychological health

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Family Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:
