

Special Issue on Family Psychology

Call for Papers

"Family psychology" is an academic field focused on understanding the dynamics, relationships, and functioning of families. It examines the influence of family systems on individuals' mental health and well-being, emphasizing the interplay between family members, communication patterns, conflict resolution, parenting styles, and family development stages. The goal is to enhance understanding and provide evidence-based strategies to support and strengthen family relationships and overall family functioning.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Family Psychology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Family therapy
- Marital and couples therapy
- Parenting and parent-child relationships
- Dynamics and interactions within family systems
- Divorce and family transitions
- Family violence and abuse
- Cultural and cross-cultural family psychology
- Family resilience and coping
- Family environment on personality
- Emotional intelligence and attachment
- Intimate relationships
- Family functioning and psychological health

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Family Psychology” should be chosen during your submission.

According to the following timetable:

Submission Deadline	January 17th, 2024
Publication Date	March 2024

For publishing inquiries, please feel free to contact the Editorial Assistant at submission.entrancel@scirp.org

PSYCH Editorial Office
psych@scirp.org