

Special Issue on Monetary and Financial Economics

Call for Papers

Financial economics is characterized by "concentration on monetary activities". It concerns with the interrelation of financial variables, such as prices, interest rates and shares, as opposed to those concerning the real economy. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in area of financial economics.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Monetary and Financial Economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Asset pricing and option pricing
- Monetary activities
- Corporate finance
- Allocation and deployment of economic resources
- Portfolio theory optimization
- Decision making
- Financial models and financial econometrics
- Stochastic analysis
- Investment theory and analysis
- Certainty and uncertainty
- Stock market performance
- Financial markets analysis

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special Issue – Monetary and Financial Economics" should be chosen during your submission.
