

Special Issue on Sustainable Development in Times of Economic, Political and Social Crises

Call for Papers

The special issue is in line with very topical issues, such as the emerging uncertainty caused in 2019 by the occurrence of a pandemic and now by armed conflict in Europe. The unprecedented economic, social and, above all, political situation has shaken the accepted patterns of regional or national governance. Therefore, describing the latest research in this area is very necessary. The results of these studies, will help to organize knowledge. The results of the research will form the basis for the formulation of proposals for new solutions to help in the sustainable development of the region. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Sustainable Development in Times of Economic, Political and Social Crises.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore Sustainable Development in Times of Economic, Political and Social Crises. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Sustainable regional development
- Economic crises
- Social crises
- Political crises
- Conflicts
- Cyclicity
- Word economy

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
